MORE WARSHIPS TO GO SOUTH

AMERICAN COMPANY ASKS PRO-TECTION AT COLOMBIAN PORT.

Hurry Orders to the San Francisco-Rear Admiral Coghlan's Flagship, the Olympla, and the Detroit Also to Go Secretary Moody Ready for Emergencies.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.-Secretary Moody is using every effort to sustain with the navy the policy of the Administration looking to an end of disturbances in South American and Central American countries. and the value of his advance preparations became apparent this afternoon when a situation arose that will probably call for the immediate use of the cruiser San Francisco, which had previously been ordered to San Juan.

A letter was received at the Navy Department from the Boston Fruit Company. which owns and controls valuable property mar Santa Marta, Colombia, in the vicinity of the Magdalena River. The communication explained that cable advices from the company's agent at Santa Marta showed that the telegraph and railroad lines were being obstructed, seriously affecting the company's interests.

A request was made for protection, which was referred to the State Department and later in the day it was determined to hold the gunboat Marietta in readiness at La Guayra to proceed to Santa Marta should the situation there require it. Should the Marietta leave La Guayra she will be replaced by the Montgomery now at Cape As it is the purpose of the Navy Department to have a warship at each point of trouble in the West Indies, it will be necessary to send another ship to Cape Haytien to relieve the Montgomery. Hurry orders have been sent the San Francisco, now at Norfolk, to proceed without delay to San Juan and await orders to go to Cape Haytien upon the departure of the Montgomery. The necessity for another emergency ship in West Indian waters will result in orders to Rear Admiral Coghlan's flagship, the Olympia, to proceed south from Boston as soon as possible. Rear Admirai Coghlan, companied by Lieuts. Chadwick and Wells, his aides, was at the Navy Department to-day arranging his plans for the Olympia's trip.

The Detroit, which was ordered into commission at the Portsmouth, N. H., yard on Saturday, is also to be sent to the West Indies for emergency service.

Meanwhile the influence of this country is asserting itself on the Isthmus. The Panther, which left League Island Navy Yard about a week ago with nearly 460 marines on board, arrived last night at Colon, and the landing force has been increased to about 700 men. They will be distributed along the line of the railway from Panama to Colon and make certain that transit across the Isthmus is not interrupted.

Now that the Colombian Government has given an assurance of its support to the purpose of the United States Government to keep transit open, the work of the naval officers will be much easier. Both the Colombian Government and the revolutionists are gathering in large force in the vicinity of Panama, and a big and probably decisive battle may be fought there within a very short time.

Information reached the State Department this morning from Minister Hart that the interior of Colombia was practically pacified and that the Government forces were in control throughout Colombia, with the exception of the vicinity of the Isthmus

Secretary Moody had a talk to-day with agents of the Orinoco Shipping and Trading Company, who asked that the gunboat Marietta be ordered to the Orinoco River to guard the company's interests. As the Marietta is the only American warship in Venezuelan waters, Secretary Moody was unable to comply with the request.

UNCONDITIONAL CLUB OUT.

Mrs. Depew Declared a Member-Speech by Senator Depew.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 23.-The Unconditional Club of Albany, supporters of Executive Chairman William Barnes, Jr. of the State Committee, arrived in the first train this morning with a band, and every member had leather lungs, which they exercised to the utmost.

They marched from the station to the United States Hotel and then around the block. Then they invaded the hotel, the first battalion with high hats and the second with yachting caps, and pranced eyously around the piazzas, cheering all hands and all delegations. Finally they got out into the court and serenaded Senator Platt. Then they went after Senator Depew, who is a member of the organization, ex-officio. District Attorney George Addington of Albany county, who is president of the Unconditionals, called for three cheers for the members of the club and Senator Depew made a speech from the balcony of the hotel, in which he said: "The eyes of the whole country, aye, of

Mrs. Depew was standing right behind her husband, and there were loud calls for her. Senator Depew was finally induced to say that she was a member of the organization and of the Unconditionals. So different are the standards of success n Portland, Ore., and Peekskill, N. Y. that if the editor of the Oregonian should visit the latter city now he would find a score of men anxious to debate a recent criticism of his on Peekskill's most famous

This Oregon editor more than a month ago hazarded the statement that Senator Chauncey M. Now that the dahlia has become the popular flower of autumn, the florists are expecting it to take the place once held by the chrysanthemum as the flower for men's wear. Yesterday one of them spoke quite confidently of this new fashion.

"Already we are having a demand for these flowers," he said, "and it comes from well-dressed men who know what they are doing. Ten or twelve years ago men of this kind were wearing chrysanthemums. The latest advice given to their patients by the men who promise to prevent hair from falling out or in some cases to restore it, is to keep away from electric lights. To emphasize the evil that may come from being too near electric lights the case of a well-known inventor is cited. He is almost totally bald and the fact is attributed to his constant proximity to electric lights

The heat that comes from electric lights is not the cause of this destructive effect, they say, but something in the nature of electricity has an influence on the hair that causes it to fall out; and even the most opti-mistic of the hair cultivators will not promise to accomplish anything in the case of heads that are coverless from this cause.

cities. We believe that the American business man is of a peculiar type; and probably the qualities of energy, daring and resource-fulness which have given him his prominence in the international world of industry find their highest development in the West. It is the merest truism to say that in the modern world industrialism is the great factor in the growth of nations. Material prosperity is the foundation upon which every mighty national structure must be built. Of course, there must be more than this. There must be a high moral purpose, a lite of the spirit which finds its expression in many different ways, but unless material prosperity exists also, there is scant room in which to develop the higher life.

The productive activity of our vast army of workers, of those who labor with head or hands, is the prime cause of the giant growth of this nation. We have great natural resources, but such resources are never more than opportunities, and they count for nothing if the men in possession have not the power to take advantage of them. You have built up this city on the inland seas as your sister cities of the Mississippi Valley and the Great Lakes have been built up, as all the region round about them has been built up, as all the region round about them has been built up, as all the region round about them has been built up, as all the region round about them has been built up, as all the region round about them has been built up, as all the region round about them has been built up, as all the region round about them has been built up, as all the region round about them has been built up, as all the region round about them has been built up, as all the region round about them has been built up, as all the region round about them has been built up, as all the region round about them has been built up, as all the region round about them has been built up that is, you had the qualities of heart and brain, the moral and physical fibre, which enabled you to use to the utmost possible advantage whatever you found HONEST MONEY A NECESSITY. Probably the most important aid which can be contributed by the National Government to the material well-being of the country is to insure its financial stability. An honest currency is the strongest symbol and expression of honest business life. The business life. pression of honest business life. The business world must exist largely on credit, and to credit confidence is essential. Any tampering with the currency, no maiter with what purpose, if fraught with the suspicion of dishonesty, in result is fatal in its effects on business prosperity. Very ignorant and primitive communities are continually obliged to learn the elementary truth that the repudiation of debts is in the end ruinous to the debtors as a class and when communities have moved somewhat higher in the scale of civilization they also learn that anything in the nature of a debased currency works similar damage. A financial system of assured honesty is the first essential.

THE TARIFF QUESTION.

Another essential for any community is perseverance in the economic policy which for a course of years is found best fitted to its peculiar needs. The question of combining such fixedness of economic policy as regards the tariff, while at the same time allowing for a necessary and proper readjustment of duties in particular schedules, as such readjustment becomes a matter of pressing importance, is not an easy one. It is perhaps too much to expect that from the discussion of such a question it would be possible wholly to eliminate political partisanship. Yet those who believe, as we all must when we thing seriously of the subject, that the proper sim of the party system is, after all, simply to subserve the public good, cannot but hope that where such partisanship on a matter of this kind conflicts with the public good it shall at least be minimized. THE TARIFF QUESTION

TARIFF A BUSINESS PROPOSITION What we really need in this country treat the tariff as a business proposition the standpoint of the temporary needs of political party. It surely ought not to be necessary to dwell upon the extreme unwis-dom-from a business standpoint, from the standpoint of national prosperity of violent necessary to dwell upon the extreme this is dom—from a business standpoint, from the standpoint of national prosperity—of violent and radical changes amounting to the direct upsetting of tariff policies at intervals of every few years.

A nation like ours can adjust its business after a fashion to any kind of a tariff. But neither our nation nor any other can stand the ruinous policy of readjusting its business to radical changes in the tariff at short intervals. This is more true now than ever it was before, for, owing to the immense extent and variety of our products, the tariff schedules of to-day carry rates of duty on more than 4,000 articles. Continual sweeping changes in such a tariff, touching so intimately the commercial interests of the nation which stands as one of the two or three greatest in the whole industrial world, cannot but be disastrous. Yet, on the other hand, where the industrial needs of the nation shift as rapidly as they do with us, it is a matter of prime importance that we should be able to readjust our economic policy as rapidly as possible and with as little friction as possible to these needs.

We need a scheme which will enable us to provide a reapplication of the principle.

We need a scheme which will enable us to provide a reapplication of the principle to the changed conditions. The problem, therefore, is to devise a plan whereby these shifting needs can be recognized and the necessary readjustment of duties provided without forcing the entire business community, and, therefore, the entire nation, to submit to a violent surgical operation, the mere threat of which, and still more the accomplished fact of which, would probably paralyze for a considerable time all the industries of the country. Such radical action might very readily reproduce the conditions from which we suffered nine years ago, in 1893.

It is on every account most carnestly to be hoped that this problem can be solved in some member into which partisanship shall enter as a purely secondary consideration, if at all, that is, in some manner which shall provide for an earnest effort by non-partisan inquiry and action to secure any changes, the need of which is indicated by the effect found to proceed from a given rate of duty on a given article; its effect, if any, as regards the creation of a substantial monopoly, its effect upon domestic prices, upon the revenue of the Government, upon importations from abroad, upon home production and upon consumption. In other words, we need to devise some machinery by which, while persevering in the policy of a protective tariff, in which I think the nation as a whole has now generally acquiesced, we would be able to correct the irregularities and remove the incongruities produced by the changing conditions, without destroying the whole structure. ADVOCATES NON-PARTISAN INQUIRY.

tinue our definitely settled tariff policy, providing for the changes in duties particular schedules which must iney and necessarily take place from time t particular schedules which must have and necessarily take place from time to time as matters of legislative and administrative detail. This would secure the needed stability of economic policy which is a prime factor in our industrial success, while doing away with any tendency to fossilization. It would recognize the fact that as our needs shift it may be found advisable to alter rates and schedules, adapting them to the changed conditions and necessities of the whole people; and this would be in no wise incompatible with preserving the principle of protection, for belief in the wisdom of a protective tariff is in no way inconsistent with frankly admitting the decirability of changing a set of schedules when from any cause such change is in the interests of the nation as a whole. Our tariff policy is designed to favor the interests of the nation as a whole and not those of any particular set of individuals save as an incident to their building up of national well-being.

COMMITTEE OF EXPERTS.

COMMITTEE OF EXPERIS.

There are two or three different methods by which it will be possible to provide such readjustment without any shock to the business world. My personal preference would be for action which should be taken only after preliminary inquiry by and upon the findings of a body of experts of such high character and ability that they could be trusted to deal with the subject purely from the standpoint of our business and industrial needs. But, of course, Congress would have to determine for itself the exact method to be followed. The Executive has at its command the means for gathering most of the necessary data, and can act whenever it is the desire of Congress that it should act. That the machinery exists for turning out the policy above outlined I am very certain, if only our people will make up their minds that the health of the community will be subserved by freating the whole question primarily from the standpoint of the business interests of the entire country, rather than from the standpoint of the functed interests of any group of politicians. any group of politicians. Of course, in making any changes we

READY FOR THE PRESIDENT. Cemporary Home in Washington All Prepared for Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.- A telegram was received from Secretary Cortelyou at the emporary Presidential house, 22 Jackson place, to-night directing that the private apartments be placed in readiness for immediate occupancy by the President. As the house was in good order when the President took possession of it, early in the summer, no repairs have been necessary and the rooms are in the same condition as when the President left Washington in July.

It is expected that the President will reach Washington to-morrow night.

MRS. ROOSEVELT NOTIFIED. The President's Wife Will Go to Washington This Morning.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., Sept. 23 .- The first news of the operation on President Roosevelt bulletined here came as a rumor from New York. Shortly afterward the President's office in the bank building received the statement of Secretary Cortelyou by wire and at the same time a telegram was received for Mrs. Roosevelt. She was absent from home at the time and did not return until almost dark. The message assured her there was nothing alarming as to her husband's condition. She will start for the capital to-morrow morning.

It is said here that on the day of the Nacsau county reception the President when asked by a friend if he felt any ill effects from the trolley mishap replied that there was a slight soreness of the muscles of one leg which he felt at times, but that it seemed to be passing away. His friends here seem to think that his refusal to postpone his trip to the South just after the accident aggravated the trouble.

CHARGES READY, SAYS STURGIS -QUICK TRIAL PROMISED.

Meanwhile the Chief Must Report From Day to Day-Lawyer Delaney Bitterly Attacks the Commissioner. Who, He Says, Is Wrecking the Department.

Chief Croker reported at the Fire Commissioner's office yesterday morning in bedience to orders he had received when e reported on Monday. All the Commissioner had to say was to order him to report again this morning.

Late in the afternoon it was announced y Secretary Leary that the charges will se served on the Chief this morning and day fixed for the trial. Commissioner Sturgis further said that an early day would be fixed and the trial pushed to a finish without a day's interruption. The charges will be made public after they have been served on the Chief.

After Chief Croker had received orders o report again to-day and before it was announced that the charges would be served this morning, John J. Delaney, Chief Croker's counsel, issued a statement attacking the Commissioner's methods. This is part of it:

How can discipline be maintained in a department whose chief is made a spectacle of in this manner before the public and his subordinates, reporting for duty from week to week and now from day to day, unlawfully suspended from office and no charges preferred against him? It will be years before the morale of the force can be reestablished, and, no matter how the case may turn, it will be long before the harmful work can be undone.

It is impossible to attribute to the Commissioner any honorable motive in withholding the charges, if he has any, for he gave out the statement last week that he would not then serve charges against Chief Croker, because he did not desire to humiliate the Chief before the firemen's convention, then about to assemble. This statement was a tricky, one. Its purpose was transparent. ricky one. Its purpose was transparent. The Commissioner wished to make it appear

The Commissioner wished to make it appear to the public that he was "peculiarly sensitive" about the Chief's feelings.

If the charges were ready last week, why were they not served upon the Chief, rather than use the subterfuge that they were not served because of a desire to spare his feelings? If they were ready then, they surely must be ready now. Why were they not served yesterday or to-day? I am not speaking of the Chief's rights now. The courts will hear his complaint. I am speaking of the irreparable injury which is being done the service and the public interests. It is a disgrace. Let Mayor Low stand by and witness it if he will.

"SPIRIT" BANKRUPT. Sporting Newspaper on the Rocks After

71 Years. The Spirit of the Times and New York

Sportsman, successor of "Wilkes's Spirit, which for many years from 1858 on was the Bell's Life of America, and a prosperous sporting newspaper, has gone bankrupt Villiam T. Porter established the original Spirit in 1811. George Wilkes came in in 1853 or 1854 and became sole proprietor in 1858. In 1875, Col. Elisha A. Buck bought from Mr. Wilkes a half interest in the paper and in 1879 the other half. Twenty years later a stock company, of which Mr. Buck was president, took the paper. Mr. Buck was killed in a railroad accident in August. 1893, and Horace Russell has since been president. He is the principal petitioning creditor in bankruptcy, his claim being $10,000 for money lent in the past five years. Alexander F. W. Leshe has a claim for $1,699 for salary as manager and for advances, and Edward Abercombie a claim for $202 for services as editorial writer. The pe titioners say that the company is insolvent has refused to pay its notes for more than a year past, has refused to pay other obliga-tions, has suffered suits at law to be brought by creditors which are now pending, that its property at a fair valuation will not be sufficient to pay its debts, and that it has admitted in writing its inability to pay its debts and willingness to be declared bank

DISBROW'S WIFE A WITNESS. Girl Whose Marriage to Him Was Annulled Goes Before Grand Jury.

RIVERHEAD, L. I., Sept. 23.-Miss Jessie Everett of Queens was a witness before the Grand Jury to-day in the case against her former husband, Louis A. Disbrow, accused of killing Sarah Lawrence and Clarence Foster last June. Miss Everett was recently freed from Disbrow by having the marriage annulled on the ground that she was under age at the time of the ceremony. She was fashionably attired when she entered the Grand Jury room to-day, and she carried a huge bouquet of pink roses. She was accompanied by F. H. Van Vechten, her attorney. This was the first appearance of Miss Everett in the case. She wa in the Grand Jury room about fifteen min By his request, Miss Everett met Dis-brow, then her husband, after he left Good Ground on the day following the alleged Another witness who had not appeared before in the case was Dr. J. H. Brower Browning of Smithtown. It is supposed that he was called to testify as to the signs of death by drowning.

It is said that a colored woman who was to testify as to the stock being so tightly drawn around Miss Lawrence's neck as to suggest strangulation has gone South and will not be a witness. ACCUSED OF THEFT IN OIL DEAL. Ohlo Man Arraigned Here on the Complaint of an Investor. William L. Russell of Lima, Ohio, was arraigned yesterday before Judge Newurger in the General Sessions upon a charge of grand larceny in the first degree He gave $1,000 cash bail. He was indicted last June upon the complaint of Malcolm C. Anderson of 68 Broadway, who testified that on Oct. 2, 1901, Russell, who was a arge stockholder of the Knickerbocker Crude Oil Company, induced him to invest $3,500 upon the representation that the company had sunk and owned two oil wells, producing 100 barrels a day, near Lima and needed the money to finish paying for them. Anderson said the concern had not sunk any wells. Russell surrendered himself yesterday at the District Attorney's office. While here he lived at the Fifth Avenue Hotel. He is said to be one of the wealthiest men in Lima.
